I. Walking Together in Faith, Hope and Mission

September: A Time to Pause, Reflect and Renew

The month of September invites us to pause, reflect and renew ourselves in the Lord. As we continue our journey as a diocesan family, we are reminded that the Church is not merely a place we visit, but a family in which we walk together, pray together and serve together.

Caring for God's Creation

The month begins with the celebration of the World Day of Prayer for the Care of Creation on 1 September and the Season of Creation. It is a timely reminder that creation is God's precious gift entrusted to our care. As Christians, our faith calls us to protect nature, use resources responsibly and leave a healthier world for future generations. Let our parishes, schools, institutions and families become places where care for creation is lived in practical ways.

Mary and the Holy Cross: Models of Discipleship

September also brings before us the beautiful feasts of the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin Mary and the Exaltation of the Holy Cross. Mary teaches us the beauty of humble availability to God's plan. The Cross teaches us that love sometimes demands sacrifice, perseverance and courage. Together, Mary and the Cross remind us that discipleship is not simply about believing in Christ but following Him faithfully, even when the path is difficult.

Strengthening Communion in Our Diocese

As a diocese, we have a special responsibility to strengthen our communion. Our priests, religious, catechists, lay faithful, youth, children and families are all important members of one Body of Christ. No parish, institution or individual can accomplish the mission of the Church alone.

Participation, Collaboration and Shared Responsibility

Therefore, I encourage every parish community to promote participation, collaboration and responsibility. Parish councils, associations, youth groups, women's groups, catechists and all apostolic movements should work together with a common vision: to make Christ known, loved and followed.

Walking with Our Young People

Our young people deserve special attention. They are not merely the future of the Church; they are the Church today. Let us listen to them, accompany them and give them opportunities to discover their gifts and use them for the service of God and society.

Forming Minds and Compassionate Hearts

Our educational and social institutions also have an important mission. Education must form not only intelligent minds but also compassionate hearts and responsible citizens. Our schools, colleges, hospitals and social-service initiatives must always reflect the Gospel values of dignity, justice, compassion and service.

Reaching Out to Those in Need

I also encourage our priests and religious to remain close to the people, especially to the poor, elderly, sick, migrants, families in difficulty and those who feel forgotten. The credibility of our evangelization depends greatly on the way people experience Christ's compassion through us.

A New Journey of Communion, Participation and Mission

As I begin my ministry among you as your Bishop, I place great importance on the spirit of communion, participation and mission. I wish to walk with you, listen to you and work with you so that together we may build a Diocese that is spiritually vibrant, missionary in outlook and compassionate towards those in need.

Fathima Vani: A Bridge of Communion

Let Fathima Vani also continue to be more than a diocesan publication. Let it become a bridge connecting our parishes, institutions, priests, religious and faithful, sharing the stories of God's grace and inspiring one another in mission.

Three Commitments for September

Dear brothers and sisters, let us enter this month with three simple commitments:

Pray more deeply.
Love more generously.
Serve more joyfully.

May Mary and the Holy Spirit Guide Us

May the Blessed Virgin Mary, whose Nativity we celebrate this month, accompany our diocesan family. May the Holy Cross strengthen us in moments of difficulty. And may the Holy Spirit guide our Diocese of Warangal to become ever more faithful to Christ and His mission.

With Prayers and Blessings
+ D. Vijaya Paul
Bishop of Warangal

II. Holy Father's General Intention: For the care of water.

Let us pray for a just and sustainable management of water, a vital resource, so that everyone may have equal access to it.

III. Pope's Message for World Day of Prayer for the Care of Creation:

"They shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks" (Isaiah 2:4)

Jesus tells us, "I came that they may have life, and have it abundantly" (Jn 10:10). Life is God's precious gift, and creation is the home He has entrusted to us. Therefore, caring for creation is not simply an environmental responsibility; it is a spiritual responsibility and an expression of our love for God and for one another.Today, our world is facing many crises: war, violence, poverty, injustice, climate change and destruction of nature. These problems are closely connected. War destroys human lives and families, but it also destroys forests, soil, water and food resources. Environmental destruction, in turn, increases poverty and inequality and can create new tensions and conflicts.

The Problem Begins in the Human Heart

The deeper root of these problems is found in the human heart. When the heart is controlled by greed, hatred, selfishness, the desire for power and unlimited profit, these attitudes eventually appear in society and in our relationship with creation.Pope Benedict XVI reminded us: "The external deserts in the world are growing, because the internal deserts have become so vast." What is damaged outside us often reflects what has already been damaged within us.Therefore, caring for creation requires not only new laws and better systems, but also a conversion of heart. We need to return to God, allow Him to heal our hearts and learn again to respect the dignity of every person and the beauty of creation.

From Swords to Plowshares

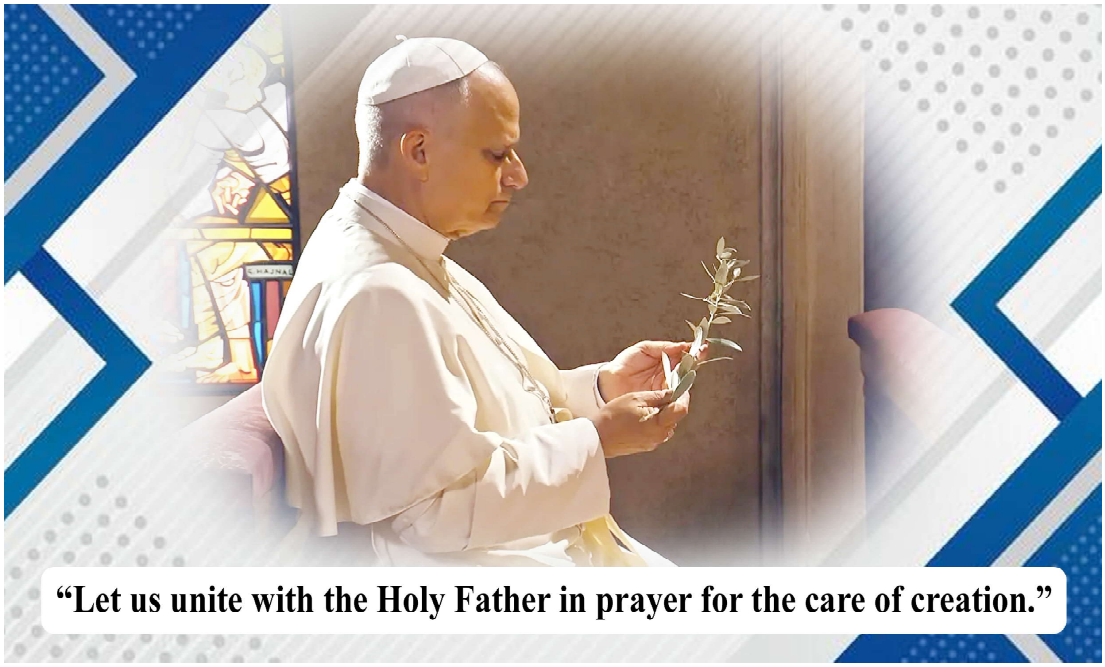

The prophet Isaiah gives us a powerful vision: "They shall beat their swords into plowshares" (Is 2:4). A sword is an instrument of destruction; a plowshare is an instrument of cultivation and life.This means that the resources used for war and destruction should instead be used for feeding the hungry, helping the poor, educating children, protecting human dignity and caring for our common home.The same transformation is needed in our personal lives. We must turn anger into forgiveness, hatred into love, indifference into compassion, greed into generosity and conflict into reconciliation

Peace Begins in the Heart

Jesus says, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you" (Jn 14:27). True peace does not begin with weapons or power. It begins in a heart that has encountered Christ.When our hearts are renewed, our families become more peaceful, our communities become more united, and our relationship with creation becomes more responsible. Therefore, we are called to protect three interconnected "ecosystems": the ecosystem of creation, the ecosystem of human relationships, and the ecosystem of the human heart.

Our Mission

The task before us is great, but God does not leave us alone. He gives us His grace to become instruments of healing and reconciliation.Let us choose truth instead of lies, dialogue instead of violence, justice instead of oppression, mercy instead of revenge, generosity instead of greed, and love instead of hatred.May we become collaborators in God's work of renewal. May we move from desert to garden, from division to communion, and from violence to peace.May the Lord renew our hearts and give us the courage to care for His creation, protect human life and build a civilization of love. May the words of Isaiah become a reality in our world:"They shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks."And may the peace of Christ reign in our hearts, in our communities and throughout all creation.

"Let us unite with the Holy Father in prayer for the care of creation."

1. Excommunication decreed for Lefebvrite episcopal ordinations

A document signed by Cardinal Víctor Manuel Fernández, Prefect of the Dicastery for the Doctrine of the Faith, defines the rite celebrated on 1 July as an "act of a schismatic nature," with an explanatory note providing details of the grave canonical sanction of excommunication.

The bishops of the Priestly Fraternity of Saint Pius X, Alfonso de Galarreta and Bernard Fellay—respectively principal consecrator and co-consecrator—and the newly consecrated bishops Pascal Schreiber, Michael Goldade, Michel Poinsinet de Sivry, and Marc Hanappier have incurred "ipso facto" the "latae sententiae" excommunication reserved to the Apostolic See for having carried out "an act of a schismatic nature": the "episcopal consecration of four presbyters, without pontifical mandate and against the will of the Supreme Pontiff."This was stated in a decree released on July 2 and signed by Cardinal Víctor Manuel Fernández, Prefect of the Dicastery for the Doctrine of the Faith, and countersigned by the two Secretaries of the same Dicastery.The decision came twenty-four hours after the solemn ceremony celebrated in Écône, Switzerland, on the morning of July 1, 2026.

The Dicastery for the Doctrine of the Faith's decree establishes that, in the act of carrying out the consecration, both the consecrators and those consecrated incurred the prescribed excommunication.The painful epilogue was the consequence of the decision taken by the Lefebvrites against the will repeatedly expressed by Pope Leo XIV.The excommunication newly separates the bishops and priests of the Fraternity of Saint Pius X from the Church of Rome.As for the lay faithful, those who formally adhere to the Fraternity are to be considered excommunicated.

A brief Explanation about Lefebvrite episcopal ordinations

The Priestly Fraternity of Saint Pius X once again separates itself from Rome through illicit episcopal consecrations carried out against the Pope's will, despite the generous efforts of Pope Saints Paul VI and John Paul II, the decision by Pope Benedict XVI to lift the excommunication, and the faculties granted by Pope Francis. The central issue has been the SSPX's rejection of aspects of the Second Vatican Council, post-conciliar reforms, and its resistance to full submission to the Pope and the Church's Magisterium.

In the 1970s, Pope Paul VI repeatedly attempted dialogue and reconciliation with Lefebvre, but Lefebvre continued his opposition and was eventually suspended a divinis.In 1988, an important doctrinal agreement was reached between Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger and Lefebvre. The SSPX agreed to fidelity to the Catholic Church and the Pope, acceptance of the Church's Magisterium, and recognition of the validity of the Mass and sacraments celebrated according to the rites approved by the Church.

However, Lefebvre subsequently decided to consecrate bishops without the Pope's mandate. On 30 June 1988, four bishops were consecrated, leading to excommunication and a formal schismatic rupture.Later Popes continued efforts toward reconciliation. Pope Benedict XVI lifted the excommunication of the four bishops in 2009 and opened the way for further dialogue. However, the SSPX did not accept the doctrinal requirements necessary for full communion.

Pope Francis also made a pastoral gesture in 2016 by granting SSPX priests faculties to validly hear confessions, later extending this permission permanently. Nevertheless, the SSPX remained outside the ordinary canonical structure of the Church. In 2026, the SSPX announced new episcopal consecrations. The Vatican again invited them to theological dialogue and asked them to suspend the planned ordinations. Despite these appeals, the consecrations proceeded on 1 July 2026, resulting in what the article describes as a new schismatic act.

Main Message3

The history shows that successive PopesPaul VI, John Paul II, Benedict XVI, Francis and Leo XIV—made repeated efforts to restore full communion with the SSPX. The Holy See repeatedly kept the door open for dialogue and reconciliation, but the fundamental issues of obedience to the Pope, acceptance of the Second Vatican Council and recognition of the Church's Magisterium remain unresolved.The article emphasizes that the latest episcopal consecrations repeat the serious rupture of 1988 and have consequences for the faithful, particularly concerning the canonical status of SSPX clergy and the validity of certain sacraments they administer.

The Lefebvrite episcopal ordinations took place in Switzerland

1. CCBI National Synodal Assembly Opens in Bengaluru with Call to Build a Participatory and Mission-Oriented Church

The Conference of Catholic Bishops of India (CCBI) formally inaugurated its National Synodal Assembly 2026 at St. John's Medical College, bringing together bishops, clergy, religious, and lay delegates from across the country for a significant moment of prayer and discernment.

The assembly commenced in a deeply prayerful atmosphere with the singing of Veni Creator Spiritus, invoking the guidance of the Holy Spirit. The ceremonial lighting of the lamp marked the formal opening, led by Cardinal Filipe Neri Ferrão, alongside Archbishop Peter Machado, Archbishop Vincent Aind, Fr. Stephen Alathara and Fr. Joe Xavier.Fr. Charles Leon then led the assembly in a prayer of thanksgiving, expressing gratitude for the many blessings bestowed upon the CCBI in recent years. Welcoming the delegates, Fr. Stephen Alathara, Deputy Secretary General of the CCBI, described the gathering as "a spiritual journey" and "a moment of God's grace."

"We are here with a clear mission and a shared responsibility," he said. "We are called to renew our Church, moving from maintenance mode to missionary mode."In his presidential address, Cardinal Ferrão, President of the CCBI, traced the historical journey of the Catholic Church's episcopal structures in India. He recalled that the Catholic Bishops' Conference of India was established in 1944, and highlighted the pivotal role played by Pope John Paul II. Following the Pope's 1986 visit to India, a letter sent the following year encouraged the establishment of three distinct ecclesiastical bodies, while retaining the CBCI's role in addressing matters of national importance.

Reflecting on the CCBI's present mission, Cardinal Ferrão noted that the Conference now serves the Church through sixteen commissions, six departments, and four apostolates. He underscored the importance of the CCBI Pastoral Plan, describing it as the fruit of extensive consultation and long-term planning.The Cardinal recalled that in 2023, the bishops resolved to celebrate the Great Jubilee of Redemption, and in 2024, the new pastoral plan was formally released. He emphasised the Church's commitment to networking with people of goodwill, while prioritising outreach to the marginalised, the discriminated, and those living on the peripheries.

"Our focus is to strengthen the bonds among all," he said. "It is our collective responsibility to implement the pastoral plan. All must participate in this synodal journey, guided by the Holy Spirit."He further called for a Church shaped by dialogue, discernment, and prayer—a Church that is participatory, communion-centered, and mission-oriented.In a moving conclusion, Cardinal Ferrão recounted an anecdote about Mother Teresa following her receipt of the Nobel Peace Prize. When asked whether she could eliminate poverty in the world, she humbly replied that her mission was simply to place "a drop of clean water in a polluted ocean." Drawing from this powerful image, the Cardinal urged the delegates to contribute their own "drops" to the Church's synodal journey. "An ocean is made up of drops," he reminded them, inviting all present to participate wholeheartedly in the process of renewal and mission.

The CCBI assembly is being attended by over 220 delegates, including two cardinals, 25 bishops, 65 priests, more than twenty women religious, and over one hundred lay faithful from across India. The National Synodal Assembly will continue over the coming days, focusing on prayerful discernment, dialogue, and the implementation of the CCBI's pastoral vision for the Church in India.

2. FCRA Amendment Bill referred to Joint Parliamentary Committee amid political standoff

The Foreign Contribution (Regulation) Amendment Bill, 2026, will undergo detailed parliamentary scrutiny after the Lok Sabha moved to refer the proposed legislation to a Joint Parliamentary Committee (JPC) amid sharp differences between the government and Opposition.

Union Home Minister Amit Shah was scheduled to move a motion on Wednesday proposing a 31-member committee comprising 21 Lok Sabha and 10 Rajya Sabha members. The committee is expected to submit its report by the last day of the first week of the Winter Session of Parliament in 2026.The government has defended the proposed amendments as necessary to strengthen regulation, transparency and accountability in the handling of foreign contributions. Opposition parties, however, have demanded that the Bill be withdrawn, arguing that it could have far-reaching implications for minority organisations, civil society groups and charitable institutions receiving overseas funding.

Government defends legislation

Union Minister Kiren Rijiju defended the Bill in Parliament, saying foreign funds could not be allowed to enter or be used in India without an appropriate legal framework. Rejecting allegations that the amendments were directed at minorities or particular religious communities, Rijiju challenged the Opposition to identify provisions that specifically targeted minorities. He maintained that the legislation dealt with the regulation of foreign contributions rather than religion. The government has argued that tighter oversight is required to ensure that overseas funds are used lawfully and transparently, while accusing the Opposition of creating misconceptions about the Bill.

Opposition seeks withdrawal

The Opposition has maintained that referral to a JPC does not address its fundamental objections and has called for the legislation to be withdrawn. Senior Congress leader P. Chidambaram termed the Bill "mischievous" and warned that it could have serious consequences for minority organisations. He said the Congress would oppose the legislation during the committee's deliberations and continue to demand its withdrawal.

Opposition parties have also raised broader concerns about the impact of foreign-funding regulations on civil society organisations, charitable institutions and other groups dependent on overseas contributions.The controversy has consequently expanded beyond the technical provisions of the Bill to questions surrounding transparency, institutional independence and the functioning of organisations receiving foreign funds.

JPC to examine provisions

The proposed JPC will have 31 members from both Houses of Parliament. The committee will examine the Bill and consider different views before submitting its report. The Rajya Sabha has been asked to nominate its representatives and communicate their names to the Lok Sabha.The referral gives MPs additional time to scrutinise the proposed amendments and could provide an opportunity for stakeholders, including civil society and charitable organisations, to place their concerns and recommendations before the committee.

FCRA debate amid wider parliamentary standoff

The dispute over the FCRA Bill comes amid a broader confrontation between the government and Opposition over the handling of student protests. Opposition parties have demanded discussion on allegations of the use of force against student protesters. Congress leader Rahul Gandhi has called for Shah's resignation, accusing the government of avoiding accountability.

Trinamool Congress MP Mahua Moitra and other Opposition members have also criticised the Home Minister's alleged absence from parliamentary proceedings.

The government has rejected the allegations.

Shah said he had been attending Parliament and accused the Opposition of obstructing the functioning of the Houses. He offered to participate in a detailed debate on the student protests and answer questions from Opposition members. The Home Minister urged the Opposition to submit a formal request to the Speaker and participate in a structured discussion, arguing that parliamentary procedure required a proper debate rather than simply a government statement. He said the government had "nothing to hide" and was prepared to respond to questions.

Bill enters crucial phase

The JPC referral places the FCRA Amendment Bill at a significant stage of the legislative process. The legislation will now be examined by members of both Houses before Parliament considers the committee's recommendations. For the government, the process provides an opportunity to demonstrate that the proposed amendments are aimed at strengthening regulation and accountability. For the Opposition and civil society organisations, the JPC offers a platform to raise concerns over their potential impact. The committee's findings could therefore prove crucial in determining the future of the Bill as Parliament continues to debate the balance between regulating foreign contributions and protecting legitimate charitable, social, religious and humanitarian activities.

3. Goa Catholic Groups Urge Kharge to Oppose FCRA Amendment Bill

Two Catholic organisations in Goa have urged Congress president Mallikarjun Kharge to oppose the Foreign Contribution (Regulation) Amendment Bill, 2026, in its present form or press for amendments to provisions they say could adversely affect minority institutions and civil society organisations. The Council for Social Justice and Peace (CSJP) of the Archdiocese of Goa and Daman and the Catholic Association of Goa (CAG) submitted a joint memorandum to Kharge on August 18, welcoming the Congress' demand in Parliament for the Bill to be referred to a Joint Parliamentary Committee (JPC) for detailed scrutiny.

The memorandum, signed by CSJP secretary Fr. Savio Fernandes and CAG president Cyril A. Fernandes, called for a transparent and inclusive JPC process involving stakeholder testimony, expert opinion and public consultation.A key concern raised by the organisations is a provision relating to assets created wholly or partly through foreign contributions. They said the proposed legislation could empower the government to take over, manage or dispose of such assets if an organisation's FCRA registration is cancelled, surrendered or ceases following non-renewal.The organisations said the provision could have implications for minority-run educational, healthcare and social-service institutions in Goa, many of which have operated for decades.

They also warned that organisations working with vulnerable communities could be affected, particularly those involved in education, healthcare, livelihood support, disaster relief, disability services, tribal welfare and child protection.The memorandum further raised concerns about what the organisations described as the potential for selective action against civil society organisations and a "chilling effect" on groups working on issues such as human rights, environmental protection, labour rights, social justice and public accountability.

The two organisations linked their concerns to constitutional protections under Articles 25, 26, 29 and 30, covering religious freedom, freedom to manage religious affairs, cultural and educational rights and the rights of minorities to establish and administer educational institutions.The memorandum said minority-run schools, colleges, technical institutes, hospitals, dispensaries, orphanages, old-age homes and charitable institutions have made a significant contribution to education, healthcare and social welfare in Goa.It also referred to recent FCRA action involving two organisations affiliated with the Archdiocese of Goa and Daman—the Diocesan Society of Education and the Diocesan Centre for Social Communications Media. The organisations noted that the Bombay High Court had stayed the cancellation of their FCRA registrations.

The memorandum also cited concerns raised by local Congress legislators, who have described the proposed legislation as a potentially "draconian tool" and warned of the possible impact on the properties and assets of NGOs, minority institutions, charitable organisations and media bodies.The CSJP and CAG urged Kharge and the Congress to continue opposing the Bill in both Houses of Parliament unless its contentious provisions are addressed. They called for the legislation either to be substantially amended or withdrawn.They also urged the Congress leadership to ensure that concerns specific to Goa's minority institutions are placed before the proposed JPC and considered as part of the parliamentary scrutiny of the Bill.
